Those who manage a company hold responsibilities not only towards their direct stakeholders but also towards the environment in which their business operates. For this reason, Augustea embraces the principles of social responsibility as key drivers of a sustainable approach to engaging with local communities and addressing major social challenges.

In recent years, our commitment has focused on healthcare; educational grants for underprivileged individuals; support for vulnerable and marginalized people; humanitarian relief efforts; national trusts dedicated to preserving the artistic and natural heritage of the countries where we operate; and, above all, on children.
